Computer training must for grade C govt employees

By Ravi Dayal, TNN | Nov 6, 2012, 04:42 AM IST

PATNA: The state government is training all its grade C employees in computer skills as part of its plan to strictly enforce the Bihar Government Servants (Computer Competency for recruitment and confirmation) Rules, 2011 in giving increments to the staff below 50 years of age. The rules will be applicable in fresh appointments as well.

Under the rules notified in Bihar Gazette on May 24, 2011, the Grade C employees of different government departments to the block level are being imparted computer training in different phases.

The information & technology (IT) department is acting as a nodal department to facilitate computer training to the employees so that they pass the tests conducted by the DOEACC Society, an autonomous scientific society of the Union ministry of communications and information technology, which is now known as National Institute of Electronics and Information Technology (NIELIT).

IT minister Shahid Ali Khan told TOI that the training programmes were being conducted by the DOEACC-approved IT training agencies across the state.

The DOEACC official, P K Singh, said more than 300 approved IT training centres have been assigned the job of giving training to the state employees and most of them were providing regular training after being approached by different government departments and agencies.

The rules provides: "Notwithstanding any otherwise provision contained in Service/Cadre Rules of the state government where passing of computer competency is required for appointments and no special qualification has been prescribed, the certificate of passing a course of DOEACC Society shall be determined by the department of IT for confirmation in each service/cadre."
